June 1998 ACM Transactions on Database Systems (TODS), Volume 23 Issue 2

Full text available: 🖹 pdf(365.98 KB)   Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms, review

The article proposes a scalable protocol for replication management in large-scale replicated systems. The protocol organizes sites and data replicas into a tree-structured, hierarchical cluster architecture. The basic idea of the protocol is to accomplish the complex task of updating replicated data with a very large number of replicas by a set of related but independently committed transactions. Each transaction is responsible for updating replicas in exactly one cluster and invoking add ...
